

Multicultural Education for Learners with Exceptionalities

Advances in Special Education

Anthony F. Rotatori
Festus E. Obiakor
John O. Schwenn

About the Book

This volume is devoted to examining multicultural perspectives in special education. It tackles demographic challenges in today's classrooms, schools, and communities that general and special educators must be aware of, by presenting information on multidimensional methods for dealing with those students who look, talk, behave and learn differently. Chapter authors provide innovative ideas for educators willing to shift their identification, assessment, placement, and instructional paradigms to better serve multicultural learners with exceptionalities.
